TRACK C – CONSUMER & FAN EXPERIENCES

PROBLEM

The most-watched second in sport has no market at its grain – and in-play settlement is a black box.

In-play platforms settle through a resolver you simply trust

A per-market human proposer + a multi-hour dispute window costs more than a one-goal micro-market turns over — so the grain doesn't exist

GRAIN UNLISTED

INSIGHT

Settlement cost — not fan demand — decides which markets exist.

Cut marginal settlement to a browser-checkable receipt re-read, and the most exciting seconds of a match become listable.

COMPETITORS

In-play exists; verifiable in-play doesn't – in the field we surveyed.

- Azuro / Overtime / World.xyz (in-play since Jul 1 2026): real products, trusted-oracle settlement
- Polished fan-UX rivals match comprehension speed
- Coarse-grain venues stop at match level

DIFFERENTIATION

"Don't trust our resolver — re-check ours."

Result evidence bound to the exact market, fixture and line

One-tap browser re-verify — no API key, no wallet
